

Important changes to AWS Certification exam delivery

Key details you need to know

WHAT is changing?

AWS Certification will soon streamline exam delivery and Pearson VUE will be the sole test delivery provider for AWS Certification exams.

WHEN is it happening?

This change will take effect January 1, 2023. From this date onward, you'll need to schedule your AWS Certification exam with Pearson VUE.

WHO is impacted?

This impacts anyone around the globe who plans to take an AWS Certification exam after December 31, 2022.

What to do if you:

- Already have an AWS exam scheduled with PSI
 - If your exam is scheduled on or before December 31, 2022, no action is required.
- Want to use a prepaid PSI voucher to schedule with PSI
 - You can take your exam through PSI until December 31, 2022, 11:59 p.m. UTC.
- Want to use a prepaid PSI voucher to schedule with Pearson VUE
 - Beginning December 30, 2022, all unused, unexpired PSI vouchers may be used to schedule an exam with Pearson VUE. The original voucher expiration date will not change.

Note: Your exam history with PSI will be available through your AWS Certification Account.

WHY is AWS making this change?

To simplify the testing experience and give test-takers a single point of contact to serve all their testing needs.

WHERE can I get more information?

Get additional details about the transition, your AWS account, how to schedule exams with Pearson VUE, and more at AWS Certification FAQs.