The admission process when taking proctored exams includes enhanced security requirements for those wishing to take Symantec exams. The exam registration process is streamlined so that candidates will register for exams directly from their own Symantec CertTracker account. This will ensure that exam results flow to the intended candidate exam records.

In addition to the current identification and admission requirements, candidates who are taking a proctored exam will now be photographed and asked to provide a digital signature. The photograph and signature will become a permanent part of each candidate's Symantec certification record. Photos taken during the admission process will be printed on score reports and all candidate data will be securely stored and protected by Pearson VUE. These requirements may be modified according to local laws.

5. What are the benefits of capturing digital photos and signatures?

Digital photos may be used to assure employers that the person presenting the certification credential is the same individual who took the exam. Likewise, candidates are given peace of mind knowing that their credentials are protected. Further, this initiative will help to ensure that Symantec IT certifications maintain their integrity and value within the marketplace.

6. How will candidate personal information be stored?

Both Symantec and Pearson VUE employ rigorous measures to ensure data privacy. Although technical testing is a significant part of Pearson VUE's business, the company also routinely delivers a variety of other high-stakes exams—everything from medical board licensing exams to the GMAT. The same methodologies used for the collection, encryption and storage of data for these programs are used for the Symantec certification program. For additional information, each company's Privacy Policy can be found on: <http://pearsonvue.com/legal/privacy/>.
